Dear Patsy,

I was happy to receive your letter. It sure helped a lot when I came home from school, tired and lonesome. I am glad that you take some of your time to write me.

(I would like to continue the discussion on woman psychology if you don't mind.)

(I'll admit that 9 times out of 10 the boy asks the girl for a date.) In a way this "making herself attractive" might be called a form of psychology.

I'll admit the boy asks for a date, but don't you think the girl encourages the boy along through <sup>one form of psy or another</sup> that is not the case all the time, because everyone wants to be neatly dressed and so on.

Would you consider me correct in stating that? (above)

In a certain sense the boy becomes the slave, because psy can be used to control another person to a certain extent.

Considering "attractiveness" a form of psychology, would you <sup>consider</sup> say I am correct in saying that the girl uses this form of psych. or another to encourage the boy to ask her for a date? That is not true in every case. ~~The supply she has and she wants the boy to be taking. She can just spin.~~ ~~It may not seem right, but she accomplishes this through~~

In regard to the bag from D C, we have discussed it pretty well.

I see no reason for you to be disturbed by the fact that you once bought purple saddle - girths. I like them because they look so good on you.

I know U R not guilty of being at fault  $\frac{2}{3}$  of the time on our disagreements. Please state in your next letter the disagreements you have in mind
